Program:	Head Start	Date Revised:	March 10, 2008
		Date Reviewed:	January 20, 2016
Policy Council Approval:	January 16, 2013

Regulation Reference: 45 CFR Part(s): 1302.31(b)(1)(iv)

Policy:

A developmentally appropriate educational program for young children is composed of both concrete and abstract experiences that provide knowledge of themselves and the world around them. The Head Start program helps young children develop basic skills, concepts, knowledge, and attitudes in the important areas of intellectual development, social behavior, emotional balance and physical skills. The curriculum is flexible and child-centered and is designed to be a part of the total educational continuum, not a separate program.

Procedure:

The daily lesson plans for each class will include activities that foster development of the skills listed below.

1. Cognitive development includes concept formation, problem-solving, classification, communication observation, and relationships.
 - a. Language skills: This includes use of increased vocabulary to communicate orally, use of appropriate patterns of English, use of age-appropriate language, and verbalization of needs and feelings.
 - b. Intellectual skills: This includes concept formation, problem-solving, classification, communication, observation, and relationships.
 - c. Perceptual skills: This includes perception using the senses: vision, hearing, taste, smell, and touch.
2. Appropriate social behavior is learned as a young child functions in and as a part of a group, interacts properly with other children, takes directions from the teacher, respects the rights of others, takes turns, works cooperatively, and accepts responsibility.
3. Emotional development proceeds optimally as the young child gains positive attitudes toward self and others, accepts self as a person of adequacy and worth, acquires self-discipline, develops independence and initiative, grows in self-confidence and self-reliance, accepts and adjusts to success and failure, and expresses feelings in an acceptable manner.

Developmentally Appropriate Practices

4. Physical and motor skills include both large and small muscle coordination. This contributes to a child's feeling of security as he begins to control himself and his environment.
 - a. Large muscle coordination is developed by climbing, pushing, pulling, lifting, skipping, hopping, throwing, running, jumping, dancing, and other creative movement activities.
 - b. Small muscle coordination is developed through manipulation of pegs, toys, and beads, assembling puzzles, building with blocks, working with tools, and painting, drawing, and gluing.
5. Self-help skills include developing behavior and skills that foster independence. These behaviors/skills include all areas of health and hygiene such as dressing, grooming, eating, tooth brushing, and toileting habits.

Policy:

Classrooms will be organized to include the following suggested learning centers: Math and Science; Pretend and Learn; Construction; Writer's Corner; Creativity Station; ABC; Library/Listening; and group meeting area.

Procedure:

Establishing Learning Center Areas:

1. The learning center area will be clearly defined through placement of furniture and dividers.
2. Learning center areas will be labeled with appropriate words, pictures, and/or symbols.
3. The arrangement of work and play areas should make maximum use of the space available and should creatively take into account any fixed features or special limitations of the room. Teachers will be aware of potential hazards, such as heating units or electrical outlets, when arranging furniture or displaying paper materials.
4. Noisy centers will be located away from quiet centers whenever possible.
5. Materials will be stored in an orderly fashion and accessible in order to promote independence.
6. Materials will be rotated regularly to stimulate interest.
7. Materials not intended for free access will be stored out of children's reach or in locked cabinets, rather than on open shelves.
8. Materials will be checked regularly to be sure they are in good repair. Teaching staff will make simple repairs; more complicated ones will be reported to the coordinated services specialist.
9. The arrangement of learning centers will not leave long, open spaces that invite running in the classroom.
10. Flow of traffic in the classroom will be observed carefully and adaptations in room arrangement made as needed.
11. Boys and girls will receive equal encouragement to use all learning centers without gender stereotyping.

Learning Centers

Using Learning Centers:

1. The daily schedule will provide as much time as possible for children to use the learning centers. Learning centers are most effective when children are given generous blocks of time during which to use these work/play areas. The daily schedule will allow for a minimum of 45 minutes for learning center use, and it is conceivable that children might work productively in centers for as long as 90 minutes. Children will be allowed the time and support to finish the activities they begin and when ready, allowed to move into another learning center and select another activity.
2. The teacher will circulate during learning center time as needed to provide guidance, interaction, enrichment, and language development. This availability to children will ensure meeting individual child needs and time to observe and document the progress of the children.

CONSIDERATIONS FOR SPECIFIC LEARNING CENTERS

Library/Listening:

1. The Library/Listening center should be a cozy, quiet place for curling up with a book. This center will include adequate space for book browsing by small groups or children and readers. The center will provide a comfortable atmosphere through pillows and other comfort furniture to sit and lie on.
2. The Library/Listening center should contain a selection of carefully chosen, sturdy books with a variety of stories, attractive illustrations, and simple, familiar plots. These should be chosen from the best of books available for young children and should include some books that are so familiar the children can “read” them, as well as less familiar ones. Book selecting should always include books that contain characters from and information on the cultures of the children included in the group, as well as children’s books written by authors who are of the same culture as children in the group.
3. Books will be neatly displayed, with covers visible to facilitate easy identification and selection. Books displayed will be rotated periodically to encourage interest.
3. Permanent book collections are provided for each classroom, and additional books are available for checkout from the school/center and local public libraries.
4. The books on display will be read and used with the children to stimulate interest and independent book handling.
5. The Library and Listening center may share resources as children select books with stories on records or tapes that the children can listen to as they look at the books. Puppets and a puppet theater may also be available as children choose to act out stories.

Learning Centers

Page 3

6. Each classroom will have a CD player, tape recorder, headsets, and a selection of tapes and CD's, which will include both stories and musical experiences.

Construction Center:

1. In the Construction center children explore and learn spatial and mathematical concepts and build their own settings in which to pretend. Teachers should not suggest activities for the block center in any way other than through the props made available to the children.
2. Adequate floor space must be provided for construction on the floor with blocks.
3. The Construction center will include wooden unit blocks, block accessories (people, animals, transportation toys, traffic signs) and sturdy materials such as packing material, rug samples, spools, along with books, maps, and writing materials and other unusual finds with construction potential.
4. Orderly storage space for blocks and block accessories will be provided to support independent access and to enhance the learning potential at cleanup time as children classify and make relationships regarding size and shapes.

Math/Science Center:

1. Materials in the Math/Science center should allow children to develop small muscles and fine motor skills; eye-hand coordination; number, color, and spatial concepts; and problem-solving skills.
2. The Math/Science center should always contain a large variety of items, which invite investigation and experimentation. These items will be rotated regularly to stimulate children's interest and exploration, and may include items related to themes or seasons, in addition to basic items.
3. Materials that might be used in this center are various types of measuring devices, clocks, timers, non-breakable thermometers, magnets, magnifying glasses, scales, stethoscope, binoculars, globe, and related books and writing materials.
4. The sand/water table with accessories may be located near the Math/Science center.

Pretend and Learn Center:

1. The goal for the pretend and learn center is that children will learn about the world by acting out their understanding of the roles of people in their world. Adults provide the props, but allow children to pretend on their own.
2. The goal for the pretend and learn center is that children will learn about the world by acting out their understanding of the roles of people in their world. Adults provide the props, but allow children to pretend on their own.

Learning Centers

3. The pretend play center will include items, such as:
 - a. Furnishings that simulate a home
 - b. Other areas for pretending, such as stores, medical or dental offices, post offices, etc., can be set up in this center or in another space in the room to go along with the theme for the week. Dress up clothes or costumes, associated with a variety of occupations and circumstances may be included in this center.
 - c. The dolls and doll clothes must be kept clean. The children should be allowed to bathe the dolls and wash the doll clothes when they are dirty.
 - d. Theme books and appropriate writing materials

Creativity Station

1. The Creativity Station should contain a variety of materials that children can use for creative expression. The five basic activities that should be supported by materials are painting, drawing, collage, clay, and construction. No teacher-made models are to be provided for children.
